

PROVERBS ABOUT HOMELAND

Sabirova Asal

Student of TMC Institute 2nd year student

Supervisor: Kamola Jumayeva

PhD, Associate Professor at TMC Institute

Annotation: This article looks at how important proverbs about the homeland are to folk culture and spiritual heritage. It takes a look at the most well known proverbs that talk about patriotism and loving the place where you are from. These proverbs also talk about respecting the traditions and roots of your country. The article pays attention to what these proverbs can teach us and how they can help shape who we are as people. The article says that being loyal, to your homeland and respecting where you come from are still ideas today.

Keywords: Proverb, homeland, motherland

The homeland is a part of who we are. People show how they feel about the place they come from in lots of ways. They write about it in books, sing about it in songs. They also use sayings that their grandparents used to say. These sayings about our homeland are really meaningful. They are about loving our country being loyal to it and respecting where come from. Proverbs about homeland are important because they help us remember who we are and where we come from. A proverb is a succinct expression that conveys wisdom, advice, or a commonly accepted truth. These expressions are often metaphorical, reflecting the cultural and historical contexts of the societies that produce them. While proverbs may seem timeless, they frequently originate from ancient traditions and texts, including religious scriptures and philosophical writings¹⁶. This article is about what these proverbs mean and why they are important for our country and our culture.

“The Homeland is a mother – be ready to stand up for her”. In this proverb homeland shows as a mother. A mother is someone who gives life, support her children, take care about them and protect them. Homeland gives people history, culture, traditions, language. Humans must respect and love their homeland as child love and respect their mother. From this proverb you can learn patriotism, responsibility and bravery. It promote people to support their homeland not only in difficult times, for example national problems, wars, crises. Also this proverb remind us that freedom and peace are valuable.

“Love for the homeland is stronger than death”. This proverb highlight the power and strength of patriotic feelings. Love for homeland can be so deep that people are ready sacrifice their life for independence and safety of their homeland. From ancient time soldiers, heroes and ordinary people fought for their homeland and protect from enemies. This proverb shows that motherland is more important than fear and personal comfort. It teach courage, loyalty and devotion. Also this proverb shows person's emotional connection to their motherland, where their family, culture, traditions and memories. This kind of love gives people strength even in the difficult situations.

¹⁶ <https://www.ebsco.com/research-starters/literature-and-writing/proverb> (The source was accessed 26.05.2026 at this time).

“A person without a homeland is like a nightingale without a song”. The nightingale is unique for its beautiful song and without its song it loses its uniqueness and beauty. Also like this people without homeland can fell lonely, empty and cut off from their roots. A homeland gives a person identity, language, culture, traditions and sense of belonging. This proverb highlight the importance of belonging. Without homeland it is difficult for people to find inner peace and stability. Also it shows that people should value their national identity and cultural heritage, because these are what shape person's character and worldview. The main idea of this proverb is that Motherland is not just place on the map, but important part of the human soul.

“Those who love their homeland will not be let down by it”. According to this proverb, sincere love and honest service to homeland are always rewarded. People who do everything for development and prosperity of their country, receive respect, success and recognition. This saying encourage people to contribute to society, save national values and care about country's future. Furthermore, proverb reminds us that even a small contribution from each person can improve society and strengthen the nation.

“On foreign soil, homeland is twice as dear”¹⁷. Sometimes people begin miss their homeland, only when they leave it. While they live abroad they start to miss familiar places, native language, family and close friends, food and traditions. Even simple things from homeland, for example bread, become dear and meaningful. The main idea of this proverb is that distance strengthens love for homeland. Also proverb shows that how deeply human connected with homeland. Many travelers and emigrants experience homesickness because it symbolizes comfort, emotional security and identity. This proverb teaches that people must value their homeland while they live there.

“Do not seek happiness in a foreign land if you have not found it at home”. According to this proverb, you cannot find happiness only if you change the country. True happiness depends on gratitude, inner peace, people attitude towards life and relationship with people around them. A person who cannot value life at home may remain unhappy even in another country. This saying encourages people to appreciate their motherland, family, opportunities they have before seeking happiness far from home. Also it cautions against having overly high expectations of life abroad. Of course travelling and new places can be beneficial, but inner satisfaction depend on person.

“The beloved homeland is like a mother”. This proverb again compares the Motherland with a loving mother. A mother is one of the most important people in everyone's life. She is dear to us and irreplaceable, just as our homeland holds the same value. The proverb highlights deep love, gratitude and respect for country. This proverb teaches that homeland holds special place in everyone's life. It gives sense of belonging, helps maintain connection to the past and inspires good deeds. People should value their homeland and remember its history, because without love for homeland it is impossible to truly respect one's origin and one's people.

¹⁷ <https://l.livelib.ru/book/5827081/readpart-from-the-russian-heart-proverbs-that-define-a-culture-erkinboj-mamanazarov/~2> (The source was accessed 12.06.2026 at this time).

To conclude, one should state that there is significant moral and cultural value in proverbs concerning the homeland. These are associated with feelings of patriotism, fidelity, heroism, gratitude and respect for one's own roots. People reveal their attachment to the native land through proverbs and teach subsequent generations to appreciate their motherland. Moreover, one should say that the homeland is not only an earthly place, but also an integral part of a person's identity and spirituality. Love to homeland unites people and inspires them to act.

References:

1. <https://www.ebsco.com/research-starters/literature-and-writing/proverb>
2. <https://l.livelib.ru/book/5827081/readpart-from-the-russian-heart-proverbs-that-define-a-culture-erkinboj-mamanazarov/~2>